ABOUT THE QUEEN'S BUSINESS LAW CLINIC (QBLC)

Established in 2009, the QBLC operates year-round to provide free legal services to a wide variety of individuals, businesses and non-for-profit organizations in southeastern Ontario who would otherwise have difficulty affording legal counsel. The QBLC seeks to provide Queen's Law students with a unique professional development opportunity while instilling in them the values of community service and the pro bono tradition.

For student caseworkers, work at the QBLC is part of a two-semester credit course that includes assignments and a weekly class. The QBLC also employs two student caseworkers for the summer months, which provides students with a more intensive work experience and ensures continuity of client service. Student caseworkers and volunteers complete their work under the supervision of the Director and two part-time review counsel from Gowling Lafleur Henderson LLP.

The QBLC is proud to have contributed to the economic growth and social well-being of Kingston and surrounding communities by helping entrepreneurs, small businesses and not-for-profit organizations with their legal issues. The QBLC is grateful for the support of the Law Foundation of Ontario, Gowling Lafleur Henderson LLP, and Queen's Faculty of Law as it continues to pursue its mandate.

ELIGIBILITY

The QBLC can only provide legal services to clients who cannot otherwise afford them. To determine eligibility, the QBLC asks prospective clients to complete an application form with detailed information about their business or organization, including personal and financial information. Further documentation, such as a balance sheet or income statement, may be requested from the prospective client.

All information provided to the QBLC is held in strict confidence and shall not be disclosed to any third parties without your express consent.

Client application forms are available at the Queen's Law Clinics office, or via our website at queenslawclinics.ca.
